

"Desperate is a strong word. That's why I like it. People who are desperate are rude, frantic, and reckless. Desperate people are explosive, focused, and uncompromising in their desire to get what they want. Someone who is desperate will crash through the veil of niceness.

The New Testament is filled with desperate people, people who barged into private dinners, screamed at Jesus until they had his attention, or destroyed the roof of someone's house to get to Him. People who are desperate for spirituality very seldom worry about the mess they make on their way to be with Jesus."

Michael Yaconelli

"Desperate people pray. They pray without thinking about it; they pray even if they are not sure who they're praying to or if anyone out there is listening at all. People in foxholes pray. So do people who go through divorce, have children that run away, or hear from a doctor that the lab results say the growth is malignant.

When we reach the limit of our resources, we pray instinctively, reflexively - like the way a man lacking oxygen gasps for breath and the way a man who is falling reaches out for something to grab."

John Ortberg

I will rejoice in the God of my salvation."
